MACH TO EXHIBIT PAINTINGS AT NCAR

Boulder, Colorado---Barry Mach will exhibit his acrylic airbrush paintings at the National Center for Atmospheric Research (NCAR) during the month of April.

Mach's one-man show invites your appreciation of the mountains, sky, and animals of the Rocky Mountains. His work conjures up an adventurous spirit and his powerful paintings evoke those times when the beauty of these things are transcendent and magical. Each work has a life of its own.

"The world is filled with almost incomprehensible mystery and power," he says, "There is a great purity and grace to the way things are in their natural state."

Mach, who spent a great deal of his life in the wilds of Canada, is a Boulder artist. His work can be found in many corporate and private collections in the United States.

The NCAR Gallery, on the second floor of the Mesa Laboratory at the west end of Table Mesa Drive, is open to visitors from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. weekdays and from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. weekends and holidays.

The National Center for Atmospheric Research is operated by the University Corporation for Atmospheric Research and is sponsored by the National Science Foundation.
